

To love somebody else in the first place is always an escape which we all hope for, and we enjoy it when we are capable of it.

But in the long run, it comes back. You cannot stay away from yourself forever, you have to return to know whether you really can love.

That is the question — whether you can love yourself, and that will be the test.

Carl Jung
1875 - 1961