Character, in the long run, is the decisive factor in the life of an individual and of nations alike.

Theodore Roosevelt
1858 - 1919